KENTUCKY

MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME

When the barrier is lifted at Churchill Downs next Saturday —in the famous Kentucky Derby we mean — the spectators will rise before the national anthem is to be played. Just before the proud strains of the Stars Spangled Banner send their nervous tingling thrills up and down the concourse of our spines, the assembled watchers and the radio listeners thoughout the nation will hear a second, more poignant melody. Its haunting strains will be heard on the calm summer air. It is the state anthem, the national "home" song. It is the universally beloved song of the heart which has been translated and sung in every language and in every clime on the face of the globe.

"The sun shines bright in my old Kentucky home,
'Tis summer, the darkies are gay."

Irrepressible pictures of pastoral happiness fill the camera of mind's memory. The lovely brilliant sunshine spreads its warmth over the plush greensward and the flowers of Churchill Downs' oval while far away out past the horizon lazy clouds in the clear blue sky [illegible] above Bardstown, thirty - eight miles away. Bardstown, which is the home, three-quarters of a mile out of town, of the real and original My Old Kentucky Home.

One hundred years ago, in 1842, Stephen Collins Foster was a lad of sixteen summers —and what delightful summers those must have been when he penned the words.

"The corn tops ripe and the meadows in the bloom While the birds make music all the day."

Then as now the garden in the rear of My Old Kentucky Home was in truth beautiful with its straight long walk of flagstones, tesselated in three rows within a carpet of thick emerald moss, while the joyful shrubbery burst from a gladsome earth and thrust its way up into the bright sunshine while each varicolored blossom sang out its sweet poems to the heart of the young Foster. Above the restful green carpet of lawn below, and beneath the pellucid blue sky above, were the stately trees which formed a lovely park and were indeed the bowers where the heavenly choirs of Stephen's feathered friends were wont to sing.

A fitting complement to the stately home was the strong and sturdy cabin with it massive fireplaces of stone at either end. The lovely garlands of rich red roses and honeysuckle and beds of violets, all the staunch bushes, palms and ferns that sprang up to decorate the humble cabin told that nature read well the laws of Him whose passion willed to serve rather than to command. No lovelier blossoms ever grew near the home itself than graced the cabin's door. And how Stephen Foster must have felt this, to be very near when he poured forth his song —

"The young folks roll on the little cabin floor,
"All merry, all happy, and bright.

He was now on a visit to his cousins, the Rowans, which family had built and owned the part of the great 235-acre estate.

It was while he stood and gazed on the grave of his late uncle and friend, Judge Rowan, that he composed his beloved song, "Massa's in the Cold Cold Ground."

It is said that the song was written on the lovely Duncan Phyfe secretary which stands in the entrance hall of the mansion; and that he played the piece on the square piano that still stands in the parlor.

The Heart of a Nation is felt in its Songs.

stately old mansion which was a reproduction of Independence Hall, Philadelphia. It had been planned and was built by John Rowan, Sr., a young lawyer of Louisville. The bricks came from England, were landed at Newport News, Virginia, and later brought to Kentucky in the winter of 1795 on sledges along the indian trails, drawn by oxen, driven by slaves.

Now he was visiting his cousins, his uncle John Rowan, Jr., whose law office, itself a cabin, was located in another restful Stephen Foster was, himself, an American to the core. On the very day when our great and beloved Presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson breathed their last — July 4th 1826 — a great American was born in the city of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. His father, a prosperous business man had once been mayor of the city of Pittsburg and had been a major in the War of 1812 as his grandfather had been before him in the Revolutionary War. Stephen Collins Foster, he it was, who was to capture forever the hearts of the people of the world with his beautiful songs, whose spirit will live again and again in the lovely voices of our school children and our grown-ups as they sing his beloved melodies —the true American songs—like "Old Black Joe," "Old Folks at Home (Swanee River)", "Old Susanna (the original 'California, Here I Come' song), "Camptown Races," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" — over 230 songs and hymns, all filled with the love of man and life by one who knew about life because he had often felt the somber hand of adversity.

But hark, the song goes on. Let us listen. What's this?

"By 'm by . . . hard times . . comes a knocking at the door
Then my old Kentucky home . . good night . . "

Who can doubt that the plaintive happiness of the earlier lines . . . now given way to the doleful reality of harder days . . may have been inspired by the memories which Stephen Foster cherished of the Old Kentucky Home. He died, penniless, in Bellevue Hospital, New York, at the same tender age — of 38 years — that had been allotted to our lovely Scottish poet, Robt. Burns, only a half century or so before. My!! What a wealth of humanity lay in these two that was given to the world. "By 'm by hard times," indeed. Yet, in the midst of it, always we find the cheerful, uplifting, heart-warming confident answer to the problems of a cold, unresponsive world.

"Weep no more, my lady. Oh, weep no more today."

Why, yes, that's it! That's it indeed. Let's sing a song, today, of a sun shining bright in our Old Kentucky Home. It is there today. It is still bright. And always, as long as the heart of a man yearns to serve it will be ever bright because —

"We will sing one song for my old Kentucky home . . . .
for my old Kentucky home .
for my old Kentucky home .
. . far away."

It is with some temerity that this writer offers this inadequate tribute to the genius of Stephen C. Foster whose memory well be revered forever by all Kentuckians for his truly great song "My Old Kentucky Home."

'Twould be an easy task indeed to pen an adequate appreciation of the state which, if any of the forty eight, may be designated as the Heart of the United States.

Fifteenth star in our national flag, admitted only five years after the signing of the constitution, in 1792, Kentucky became the first state west of the Appalachian range. Its blue grass, its Daniel Boone, its unequalled hospitality — the prettiest women, the best Bourbon whiskey, and the fastest horses on earth — all tell a voluminous heart-warming story that cannot be compressed into the space that is allotted to an article such as this.

The immediate cause of our desire to write about Kentucky is that right now a good friend and longtime subscriber to this journal, Fred E. Reed, is now back in his home state, visiting with his friends and relatives. He will view the Kentucky Derby Derby this year—as will Private Johnnie "Keeno" Bogati who is doing a grand job of guarding the nation's gold supply at nearby Fort Knox. With them in spirit will be many another Pt. Richmondite, transplanted from the Blue Grass State, such as James V. McAfee, host and owner of one of the fine bay area hotels located here, such as Sam Allen or Speed Barnes, other progressive merchants, such as Bill Barry who first saw the light of day in 'Louahvul' some seventy-three years ago and yet bears well today that quiet dignity that is associated with the conception of a true Kentucky colonel.

To each and all, and to Kentucky, our best to a great state!

REPAIRING DAMAGED LINOLEUM

WITH the manufacture of linoleum already limited by defense priorities, the linoleum now on our floors should be made to last as long as possible, for there may be difficulty in buying new. Thus, for instance, when loose linoleum or a linoleum rug begins to scuff at the edges, pieces that are chipped and broken off should not be thrown out, for they can be stuck back in place. A piece of cloth can be covered with glue or with varnish, slipped under the edge of the linoleum, and the chipped and broken pieces stuck on top, to be held in place by heavy books or something similar until the adhesive hardens. A crack toward the center of the linoleum can have a piece of cloth stuck under it, and the edges of the break pressed down to make firm contact. If not strengthened in this way, the edges of the break are likely to be scuffed and to become worse. Bits of the linoleum that are chipped off can be replaced with stick shellac or sealing wax of the same color. The wax is melted, and run into the break, to be smoothed flat before it cools.

Paint Remover.

Question: I want to remove paint from the woodwork of six rooms, preparatory to repainting. Is there anything that is as effective as commercial paint remover, and that will be cheaper?

Answer: You can make an excellent paint remover for all purposes by dissolving 3 pounds of trisodium phosphate in a gallon of water. When applied boiling hot the paint quickly softens and can be wiped and scraped off. Follow by sponging with clear water to remove all traces of the chemical. Trisodium phosphate, which is inexpensive, can be had at large paint stores, either under its own name, or as beet salt. It is not carried by druggists. It can also be had from dealers in chemicals.

Room Decoration.

Question: My living-room is 12 by 13 feet, and has a high ceiling. In papering it, I should like to make it look larger and lower. What do you think of using a striped paper and putting it on with the stripes horizontal, instead of up and down? Would this make the room look lower and larger?

Answer: I feel sure you would not like the effect. It would be better to carry the ceiling paper down the wall for at least a foot, and then to put on the border. Instead of striped paper, use a landscape paper, with plenty of perspective, which will carry the eye beyond the line of the wall, and apparently into the distance. The pattern should not be strong nor dark.

Cleaning Paint Work.

Question: What is the best way to clean house paint, darkened by soot and dust?

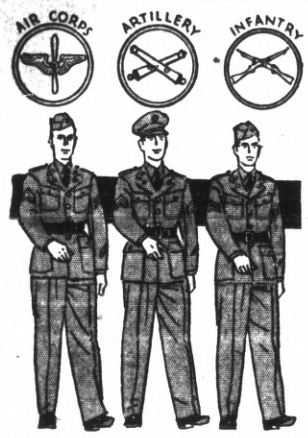

Answer: There are various inexpensive cleaning materials that can be had at paint stores. One of these is a light yellow powder, to be mixed with water to the consistency of cream. This is painted on the wall and removed after a few minutes by sponging with clear water. In washing a wall, begin at the bottom and work up; if you begin at the top and work down, the dirty water running over the dry parts will make streaks that cannot be taken out.

Shabby Mail Boxes.

Question: Three mail boxes in my vestibule originally had a dull gold finish, but are now discolored. Brass polishes do not help. What can I do about them?

Answer: One remedy would be to take off the fronts of the mail boxes, and to send them out to a plating shop to be cleaned and replated. Before doing this, ask the postman whether the boxes are under government control, and if so, where permission can be obtained.

Old Iron Works

Reminder of the days when iron working was one of North Carolina's prominent industries is an old chimney, all remaining of the Washington iron furnace located near Bessemer City, N. C. The furnace was active during the late Eighteenth century and during the first part of the Nineteenth, and many hinges, andirons and other wrought iron fixtures were manufactured. During the battle of Kings Mountain, which occurred just a few miles away, cannonballs were cast for the American army. None of these could be used, however, as the British had already been put to rout by the time the heavy balls had cooled off sufficiently for use.

Old Feud Goes On; Cause Forgotten

It All Concerns Great and Little Snoring.

NORFOLK, ENGLAND.—Between two apparently peaceful villages—Great Snoring and Little Snoring—there exists a deep and bitter feud.

Set in the heart of the green fields of Norfolk, these villages, only a mile apart, each has its own Saxon church, a huddle of ancient cottages, and the population of each for the most part, comprised of farmers and farm laborers.

The population of Great Snoring numbers approximately 370, while that of Little Snoring is about 150 less.

The only link between the two villages is the parson that they share—the Rev. L. A. Williams who is the rector of both parishes. He lives in the larger village and cycles to and fro between them.

Even the older members of the villages (known for the longevity of its men and women) are at a loss as to what the feud is really about or when it started, but despite this there is no inhabitant of either village who will speak readily to the other.

"It is a feud such as one imagines existed between the Montagues and Capulets," the rector said. "It makes things very difficult for me. Not only do the older members of the villages refuse to co-operate over church and parish affairs, but the younger ones refuse to co-operate in games and sport.

"I have never known a case of a Great Snoring boy falling in love with a Little Snoring girl or vice versa—they seem to be too feud-conscious to think of it."

The rector had hoped that the war and the start of war organizations in the two villages would bring the two communities together. But it hasn't. Great Snoring has joined forces over A.R.P. work and home guard duties with the villages in the north, and Little Snoring with the villages to the south.

And now, Little Snoring—getting ahead of its rival—raised $12,800 during its war weapons week, and, in comparison, Great Snoring raised only $2,800, and so the feud goes on.

'Sleeping Beauty' to Wed 'Prince' Who Kept Vigil

PHILADELPHIA.—The story of Philadelphia's sleeping beauty soon will have the traditional happy ending.

For 23-year-old Ruth Stevenson asked and answered her own question for friends.

"What's the first thing I'm going to do when I'm completely well? Why, I'm going to marry Edward."

Edward is Edward Carney, the sweetheart who kept vigil while she lay in a coma for three months.

Ruth was injured Christmas eve, 1940, in an automobile accident. Day after day she lay in a hospital, eyes closed, alive, yet "dead." Twice surgeons opened her skull and drew off excess fluid under the outer brain covering.

Last Easter the first flickering signs of consciousness returned, and she has improved steadily ever since. Except for a slight paralysis about the mouth, she has virtually recovered.

Professional Removers

In removing chewing gum, professional laundries use this method: First, pick as much of the gum off the garment as is possible without breaking the threads of the fabric. Then, apply carbon tetrachloride, placing a towel or a blotter underneath, and work the stain gently with a smooth glass rod. Be sure to apply enough of the carbon tetrachloride, so that the gum is loosened from the fabric and can be rolled off. If any sugar stains remain they may be removed by washing.

This takes the form of slow heart action, dry skin, generally decreased efficiency and low basic metabolic rate.

'Man of Peace' Promotes Korean War Against Japs

Dr. Syngman Rhee, President of Exiled Government, Heads Conference in Washington to Plan 'Life and Death' Revolt.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

Washington has just witnessed a most remarkable ceremony. It was what might be called the laying of the cornerstone of a new revolution. Not a mere revolution of ideas, not a scatterbrained plot of wild radicals, but the orderly preparation for a real, powder-and-ball, life-and-death revolt.

The Korean Liberty conference has just met in Washington to commemorate the March, 1919, revolution and make plans for a 1942 revolution.

The most remarkable thing about this first step toward the smashing of a tyrant's power is that its moving spirit is a wistful little figure who describes himself as a man of peace born in the Land of the Morning Calm. He is Syngman Rhee of Korea, president of the Korean government in exile since 1919, and revolutionary since 1905.

With a group of Koreans from Hawaii and others living in the United States, and with the help of a group of American friends who make up the Korean Committee of Los Angeles and Honolulu and the Korean-American council, Dr. Rhee is now busy getting ready for the revolution of 1942.

Korea, Dr. Rhee points out, was the first victim of Japan's long-planned "new order." He foresaw the present war between Japan and America and tried to warn this country. More than a year before the Pearl Harbor attack he said:

"If the Koreans had seen Japan in 1894 as they saw her in 1592, the year of Hideyoshi's unsuccessful invasion of Korea, they would have saved their country and themselves from the plight in which they find themselves today. On the other hand, if the American people had seen Japan in 1894 and 1904 as they see her today, they would have looked askance at the annexation of Korea and would have tried to meet Japan's expansion of sea power which now offers a powerful threat on the other side of the Pacific."

Long Years Of Giving Warnings

This quiet little man who has been imprisoned, tortured, exiled, had a price set on his head by the Japanese, has been haunting international conferences for nearly four decades. At Geneva, at London, in Chungking, he has moved among the statesmen and delegates quietly whispering his warnings, patiently explaining and urging, ceaselessly working for the freedom of his own people and seeking to build the cooperative effort of all free peoples. For many years he has lived in Washington.

"It is one of the great ironies of history," says Dr. Rhee, "that Japanese animosity is now directed particularly against the very nation which broke the shell of her insularity and introduced Japan to modern civilization. When, in 1854, Commodore Matthew Perry negotiated the treaty which marked the first step in opening Japan to foreign commerce and residence, he helped, all unwittingly, to set the people of the Rising Sun in the path which was to bring them later full tilt against the American people."

At the liberty conference just concluded in Washington, three main steps were taken: The Korean declaration of independence of 1919 was reaffirmed; the United States was called on to recognize the provisional government of Korea, and Korean allegiance was declared to the cause of the United Nations.

Without bitterness or recrimination these devoted patriots pointed out that the United States has its obligations to them, for the treaty of peace and amity and mutual protection between the United States and Korea still exists although we stood by without interfering when Japan reached out and "tightened her grip," as Dr. Rhee puts it, on his country back in the days of Theodore Roosevelt.

As the leader of these gentle revolutionists, Dr. Rhee at 67 watches his predictions coming true he merely feels that the goal is nearer. With the philosophy of his great master—Rhee was educated in a Confucian school—he looks on a world in flames with new courage. "The forest fire will not extinguish itself," he says. But it will be extinguished:

"At long last — perhaps sooner than we dare to hope—" he says, the democratic forces of the world will thrust Japan back on her islands and peace will reign in the Pacific. In that day, Korea will rejoin the ranks of the free and again become known as the Land of the Morning Calm."

Is the U. S. Complacent About War?

Is America complacent about the war?

That is the great question which is agitating the various agencies of government which consider it their function to stir America to the high pitch necessary for maximum war effort.

The letters which I receive fairly bristle on that subject. Complacent? We aren't complacent, they say, it's you people in Washington who are the complacent ones.

Recently I was in a gathering where three speakers told in great detail what the movie industry was doing as a part of the war effort. It is doing a lot—donating its time and its facilities. Many members of the industry are in Washington with army or navy commissions or on civilian salaries far less than they earn at their regular jobs—like the dollar-a-year men. Some are patriotic. They are too old to join the fighting forces and they want to do their bit. Some, I daresay, like many "parasites" who have swarmed to Washington are here for less altruistic purposes.

Whether or not the nation as a whole is complacent is a question which nobody can answer. The real problem which we have before us is to turn a nation, naturally attuned to peace, a nation whose military tradition is limited compared to the countries of Europe. These peoples of different language, race and customs are crowded within narrow frontiers—boundary lines which have been drawn and redrawn in the blood of thousands who were taught from childhood that the word "foreigner" was almost synonymous with the word "enemy."

We have lived and worked and had our being, between two unfortified borders and with two once-friendly oceans to guard us. Suddenly we are being forced to play a part in a world which has accepted "might is right." We know we are mighty. So mighty that it has never been a question in the hearts of even the most arrogant war lords of whether we could defeat them. Only a question of whether we would make the effort. Whether, in other words, we would be complacent while they "strut and trot their hour upon the stage." History proves that only a short space of time is granted for tyrants to oppress freemen. Longer than that no tyrant has ever existed. And America, once awakened, will number their days.

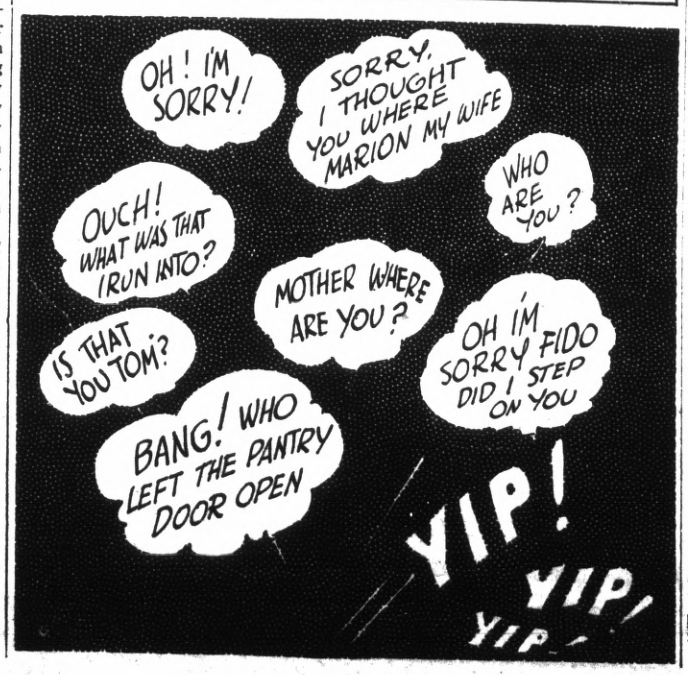

Conservatives Disagree

There are plenty of conservatives who will contest this statement. They will tell you that SOMEBODY has to foot the bill, that even if Germany and Japan and Italy manage to struggle on with no major military defeats, that unless they are totally victorious they will totally collapse financially.

This viewpoint is expressed by those who believe that eventually the thing will happen that many of us were told would happen long ago. How often did you hear before Pearl Harbor, "Japan is almost broke now, she can't afford to go to war with a major power." Or, "Germany is on the verge of absolute and financial collapse."

Perhaps these orthodox economists are correct. Perhaps it is money that makes the machine gun go as well as the mare, and when the money stops the nations which are on the verge of bankruptcy now will fall like a house of cards. But the new-school thinkers are able to marshal a lot of evidence to support their theory that there are a lot of things that money won't buy and that there are a lot of things which, if you love 'em you don't need money.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Old College

The University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., occupies a wooded domain of 10,000 acres in the Cumberland mountains, about midway between Nashville and Chattanooga. It is the only institution of higher education in the South which is owned by the Episcopal church. It was founded in 1857, but was destroyed during the War Between the States. It was reopened in 1866 with eight students and a few log houses. The university consists of a college of arts and sciences and a theological school. Over 5,000 students have been enrolled there.

Well Armed

In Chicago, George Serios, 15, and Edward Mendenhall Jr., 16, went off to join the U. S army. They took with them: two bayonets of the Franco-Prussian war, one bayonet of the Civil war, one plain bayonet and one fancy dress sword.

ELECTRIC POWER

swinging down from the mountains was READY FOR WAR DUTY

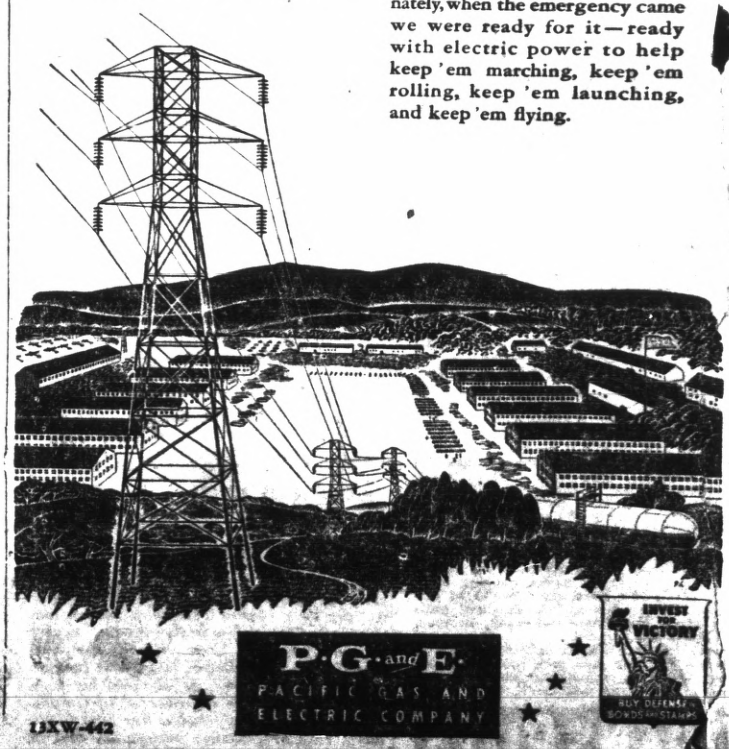

At the army camps scattered from the high Sierra to the sea, usually the first earth turned was for the towers and poles bringing electricity for war duty.

Electric power was ready for the sudden summons to speed the construction of army training camps, forts and posts, air fields, bases. Electricity was ready to rush work 'round-the-clock. Night was turned into day with electric floodlights. Electric motors drove the power saws as buildings grew row on row along cantonment streets and about parade grounds.

Not a minute was lost. Electricity was there as the great time saver. And in scores of shops, shipyards, cannery and food processing plants, factories and foundries, electric power was standing by, ready to do its share to bring war industries swiftly to peak production.

Keeping a reserve supply of electricity available for unexpected demands presents problems unlike those of any other service. Electricity flows from generating plants silently, surely and dependably, along the swaying wires in the sky. It cannot be boxed or crated or stored in tanks or bins—it has to be used as it is produced. As demand for it increases, there must be more plant capacity to generate it and there must be adequate transmission lines to put it where it can work. Making it available, providing these facilities, is our responsibility.

Electric power was ready for war duty because there was careful planning yesterday in anticipation of the needs of a far-distant tomorrow. Planning and building for the future is a job that is never done. Fortunately, when the emergency came we were ready for it—ready with electric power to help keep 'em marching, keep 'em rolling, keep 'em launching, and keep 'em flying.
